There's no such thing as a normal day when you work in the animal health sector, and it can feel stressful handling tricky questions from customers and staying up to date with new product developments in parasite control.

That's why AHDA, in association with AMTRA, has created a series of one-day workshops tailored to SQPs and covering the ABC of CPD - perfect for enhancing your communication skills and ensuring continuing professional development.

The interactive workshops accrue CPD points and are ideal for all SQPs. Workshops will be delivered at locations across the UK from May 2019 - simply choose the date and location that works best for you.

As we are coming up to the end of the two year cycle for SQPs and their CPD points target many might well be looking to top up their points before the end of June deadline

There are 20 points available for each session, so attending both the afternoon and evening sessions there are 40 points available.

Through the AHDA Council and in discussions with Stephen Dawson at AMTRA we feel that the subjects of tackling resistance and the professional development of SQPs are two key areas and so the programme has been built around these broad subjects.

The regional CPD events are free of charge to all employees of AHDA member companies. For non AHDA member companies there is a charge of £25 per person for both sessions or £15 for one session. All attendees, free or paid, must book in advance online.

Registration and Timings:

Registration will be from 2.00pm at each venue with the afternoon session running from 2.30pm through to 5.00pm.

We will then have an hour break when some light refreshments will be available.

The evening registration will start from 5.30pm and will run through until 8.30pm when a hot two course buffet will be available for those who book in advance.
